

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A hot dog frying pan comprising:

5 a. frying pan for drying, said frying pan having a handle at one side for the holding of the hand;

a metal rack mounted in said frying pan for holding hot dogs for frying, said rack comprising a plurality of cylindrical rollers pivotally arranged in parallel, a plurality of first gears respectively fixedly mounted on one end of each of said cylindrical rollers, and a plurality of second gears respectively 10 meshed between said first gears, one said cylindrical roller having a roller shaft extended out of said rack; and drive means coupled to said roller shaft and adapted to rotate the respective cylindrical roller and to further drive said second gears to rotate said first gears and the others of said cylindrical rollers.

15 2. The hot dog frying pan as claimed in claim 1, wherein said drive means is a crank handle.

3. The hot dog frying pan as claimed in claim 1, wherein said drive means is a DC motor.